UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND EASTERN SHORE 1886 — 1980

UMES, formally known as Maryland State College, was founded in 1886. Its first classes were held in a colonial type building called Olney. Built in 1798 by Ezekial Haynie, the building stood in the center of the campus for many years. It was said to have been the oldest building on any campus for black students during that time.

In 1886 the first thirty-seven students came to Olney. They brought with them not only an eagerness and enthusiasm to learn but a definite desire to improve the school and the surrounding grounds. From the time they arrived, they were immediately set to making repairs on Olney.

The first teachers of Olney were Benjamin O. Bird, who was principal, his wife Portia and an assistant, Jacob C. Dunn. For many years the Birds and Dunn worked faithfully for the school and the surrounding community. In 1897 Bird died and was buried on the campus after his funeral services, which were held at Metropolitan Methodist Church right in Princess Anne.

In 1940 Crystal Bird Fauset, daughter of Benjamin Bird, and a former member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, dedicated a new mechanic arts building in memory of her father. That building still stands and is known as Bird Hall. The construction of this building and two other buildings was financed by Federal funds.

UMES has had several names throughout its history, all of which seem to reflect the types of programs offered at the school or the type of programs under which the school was run, names such as the Industrial Branch of Morgan College, Delaware Conference Academy, Princess Anne Academy and many others.

During its early years of existence, most of the financial aid of the school came from various Methodist Conferences. However, most of the financial support after 1900 came from Federal land-grant funds under the Morrill Acts and the Nelson Amendments.

By 1936 the school had transformed from high school to college. This major change was brought about by Frank J. Trigg and Thomas Kiah. Trigg served as principal from 1902 until 1910. He was successful at gaining the Academy high recognition and thus placing it among the better black schools of that time. A native of the Eastern Shore, Kiah served as Principal from 1910 until 1930. During his years as principal, the role of the Academy as high school was eclisped by the development of public secondary education. However, due to the increase of free public education in Maryland the enrollment after World War I dropped tremendously and continued to decline in the years that followed.

In an effort to combat the rising competition from public schools, Kiah instituted a junior college program. Not bringing in the desired results, this program was terminated and a full fledged four year college was to be formed. But there again was the problem of finances and World War II also played its part in slowing down the enrollment.

Shortly after the end of World War II a major program was instituted. It was designed to revolutionize college life. This development was the major turning point in the building of a very prominent four year college program.

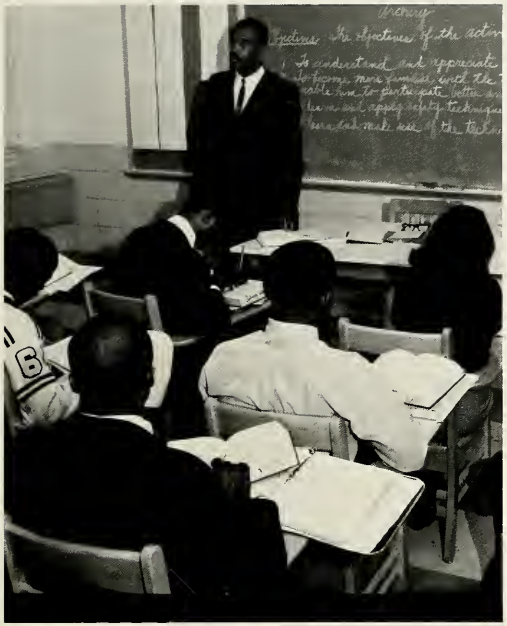

In 1947 Maryland State had such low prestige with very little or no recognition as a college that the Higher Education in Maryland Survey recommended that the college be abolished. In addition, the publicity given to the survey's recommendation by several prominent newspapers of that time left little hope for the continuation of Maryland State.

There was much turmoil all over the campus. Whites and blacks alike were in fact strongly against the continuation of Maryland State and gave no support to the officials of the school that were trying to encourage its survival.

Finally on December 17, 1947, the Legislative Council met to decide if there was any need for further existence of the college. When the council decided on the continuation of Maryland State, it received hardly any support. Along with this, the governor of Maryland, in his inaugural address stated that there would be no increase in funds for the school until an actual decision had been made as to whether the school would or would not be terminated. It was then, in an attempt to save the college, that the black citizens of the Eastern Shore Counties banded together to form the Eastern Shore Citizens Association. In one attempt to save the college, the Association sent 750 people to Annapolis to explain to the governor the need and the desire of the Eastern Shore to have the programs of the school continued and improved.

In the years that followed as before, the need for continuation of the school was continually discussed. Since the school was now under the administration of College Park, there was always the question of whether the college could meet the standards of the College Park Campus.

In 1957 the state legislature made the first clear cut appropriation of funds for new buildings and programs on the campus. The institution would live and there was no question concerning the accreditation of the college because of the State's Association's decision to approve full accreditation of Maryland State. Maryland State continued to blossom and grew with new programs, buildings and ideas.

On July 1, 1970 Maryland State College officially became the University of Maryland Eastern Shore or as it is more commonly known UMES.

Today ten years later UMES is ever progressing and improving. And as always, it has the support of teachers, administrators and most importantly the students, without whom there would be no institution.

As we look back on years gone by, we see that we have come a mighty long way. Yet, we are not where we could be or should be. The fight is not over yet and we the student body, faculty and administration must work together now to make UMES an institution capable of meeting the challenges of tomorrow.

There is a coarseness
In the songs of black men,
Coarse as the songs
Of the sea,
There is a weird strangeness
In the songs of black men
Which sounds not strange
To me.

There is beauty
In the faces of black women,
Jungle beauty
And mystery
Dark hidden beauty
In the faces of black women,
Which only black men
See.

WE WEAR THE MASK

Paul Laurence Dunbar

We wear the mask that grins and lies,
It hides our cheeks and shades our eyes —
This debt we pay to human guile;
With torn and bleeding hearts we smile,
And mouth with myriad subtleties.

Why should the world be over-wise,
In counting all our tears and sighs?
Nay, Let them only see us, while
We wear the mask.

We smile, but O great Christ, our cries
To thee from tortured souls arise.
We sing, but oh the clay is vile
Beneath our feet, and long the mile;
But let the world dream otherwise,
We wear the mask!

ELLA FITZGERALD

Ms. Ella Fitzgerald, "The Queen of Jazz" has appeared frequently in concert at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore to benefit the Ella Fitzgerald Scholarship Fund and in appreciation to the University for having named the Performing Arts Center in her honor on October 24, 1974.

It is a complex of 38,172 gross square feet of classrooms, practice studios, offices, and a 1200 seat auditorium.

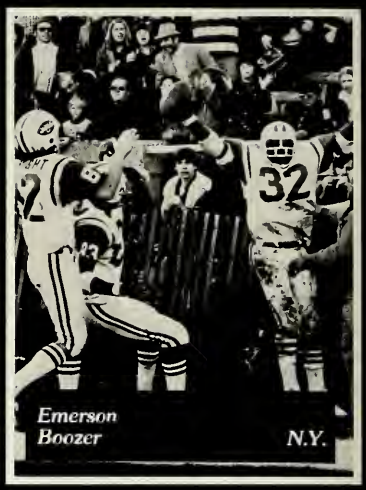

Ms. Fitzgerald's latest accolade from the University was an honorary doctorate degree bestowed upon her during graduation exercises in May, 1981.

Few women of song can outshine Ella Fitzgerald in awards and honors for her brilliance in music. She has received everything from DOWNBEAT'S "Best Female Jazz Singer Award" to the "Golden Needle Award", the highest honor ever paid an American artist by the East Berlin Government.

DEDICATION

MR. THOMAS WILES

Nowhere in the history of UMES has an instructor shown such dedication and unique concern for the University family.

Through the wheeling of his camera, Mr. Wiles has captured and recorded forever the transitions that have made this University a landmark in the national records of colleges and universities.

As a stallworth figure in his area, Mr. Wile's work stands as a representation of consistency and quality results.

For these and many other reasons, the 1980 Yearbook Staff offers a silent tribute to a man that has on more than one occasion to be an inspiration to us all.

Lemuel Bernard Clinton

As Sports Editor of the 1980 Yearbook I have found the work to be hard and very time-consuming; however, with a good supportive staff, there was room for work and play.

For this area of the Yearbook, organization of ideas, searching for sports information of the past, laying out pictures, and meeting deadlines were important aspects of the assignment or position.

I soon realized, a yearbook involves a lot of work and no money, but one's reward is being a part of a finished product. That's one's thanks.

As for me, I am a Hotel-Restaurant Management major. I am from Long Island (Northport), New York. After graduation from UMES, I plan to enter graduate school at Hofstra University for an MBA degree or Atlanta University for the same degree.

My campus activities include a position on the Hawks' Basketball team, member of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, assistant in the residence halls for 3 years, member of the campus Judicial Board.

Hopefully, you will enjoy this year's book as much as I have enjoyed working on it.

Martha Davis is a native of Baltimore, Md. She is a sophomore at the University of Md., Eastern Shore with an intended major of Pre-Nursing. She first attended this University in the fall of 1979 with the goal of becoming a Pediatric Nurse. Martha hopes to continue her education at the University of Md. in Baltimore where she will spend the last two years of her undergraduate studies. Martha became a part of the Hawk Yearbook staff in the fall of 1980. She has contributed much time and effort and patience to the completion of the 1980 yearbook. Her inspiration and hard work has helped to make this yearbook a success.

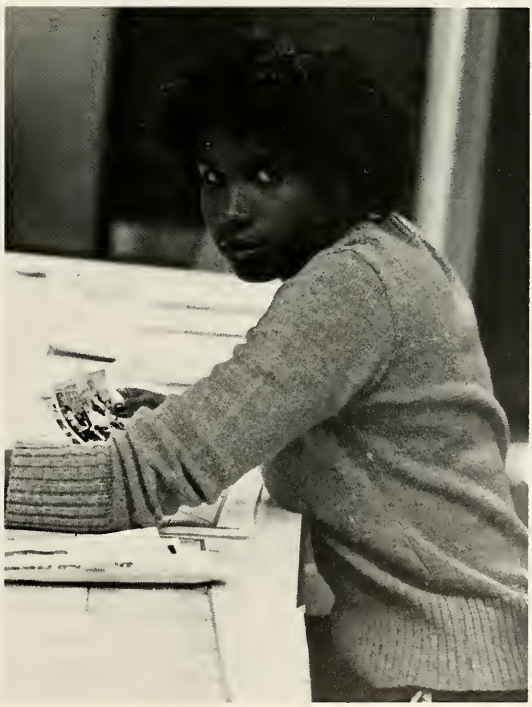

Andrea Hill is a Cooperative Education student who works for Soil Conservation Service in College Park, Maryland. She is a Business Administration major and resides in Baltimore, Maryland.

Although Andrea has had some experience in writing articles for newspaper publications, she wanted some experience in a phase of publication that is more challenging. Thus when asked to be a part of the UMES YEARBOOK, she was more than delighted to accept.

Andrea says, she has enjoyed working with the staff and cherishes the opportunity of having served a worthy cause. For persons who always ask, "When is the Yearbook coming out?" She says they should ask, "What can I do to help speed up the process and the efficiency of 'OUR Yearbook?"

Royalette is a native of Baltimore, Md., and is a sophomore here at the University majoring in Physical Therapy. This is Royalette's first year working on the yearbook and she has found it to be a very rewarding experience working on the various sections, and especially with the yearbook staff. She thoroughly enjoyed helping to put together the underclassmen section. Royalette would like to wish the staff all the best in the future, and looks forward to another successful year of working on the UMES Hawk.

WRESTLING

Michael Walker has always felt it would be refreshing to play a meaningful role in extra-curricular activities.

It was in 1979 when he decided to accept the responsibilities of Yearbook staff member. According to Michael, he has not regretted his decision, for he has found the work to be exciting as well as detailed. In other words, it brings out the best in an individual.

Michael is a Special Education major. He expects to earn his degree in 1982 and plans to work with either exceptional children or children with learning disabilities.

Hello. My name is Sharon Y. Johnson. I am a native of Washington, D.C. My present status at University of Md., Eastern Shore is a sophomore with an intended major in Business Administration. My position as part of the yearbook staff is the Layout Editor. The 1979-1980 yearbook is an inspiration to me because I dedicated much of my time and effort as the Layout Editor and I hope you enjoy it as much as I did in putting it together. In fact, I look forward to continuing my work next year as part of the yearbook staff. See you next year!

As Editor-in-Chief of the 1980 Yearbook, I have found the position to be not only challenging, but also unforgettable. I will always remember the frustrations, the tension, and the loyal, hard-working staff. If it had not been for the staff, I would not have made it. As I look back, I see it as a big challenge, but a pleasant one.

I suppose one of the things that made it a challenge was the theme we selected, "UMES, 1886-1980". We chose this theme because we feel the institution is going through a period of growth and rejuvenation, due in part to our administration and the new attitude and approach the Board of Regents is taking toward this campus.

In terms of work involved, I face a very rigid time schedule, that seemed almost impossible for the average staff. We inherited the time problem from the previous staff, so we plunged in, and spent many hours on cold winter nights organizing and laying out our material carefully. We wanted a historical yearbook that would be representative of our institution.

Also, this project has made me realize, a student publication is only as effective as the student support it receives. This support involves responding to appointments with the photographer, submitting copy as requested, etc.

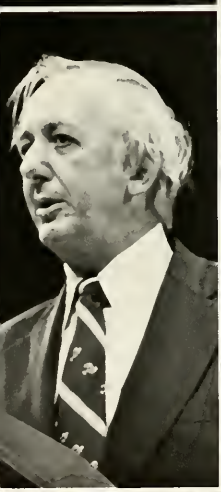

All in all, I enjoyed the challenge and I shall always be grateful to Ms. Dorothy Waters for her assistance and support as advisor.
